Let D&H Canada assist in helping you grow a profitable services revenue stream and add greater value to your client relationships.

A wireless network assessment, also referred to as a site survey, provides insight into the unique challenges each respective client location presents. The assessment will reveal areas of channel interference and identify any dead zones, avoiding problems as the network is built as well as preventing future obstacles for network users.

Assessment Deliverables

A comprehensive wireless network assessment report includes all the issues found and recommendations for resolving problems and optimizing the performance of a network. Sections of this report may include:

- Performance of existing access points
- Access point location recommendations
- Detailed wireless coverage maps and associated data rates
- Sources and locations of interference
- Coverage voids in existing deployment
- Identification and classification of neighboring networks and channel usage
